about

It's hard to place when I began to draw, it was all quite a blur as a child. Surrounded by various action cartoons and superhero comics it's no wonder I dreamed to be a hero. Those dreams became drawings and, whether the characters I adored or creations of my own, they always found their way on paper with the help of my crayons. Crayons became markers and markers became fine paints. For a long time, art has been a defining feature in my life and I believe there's no better feeling than expressing myself through it. It may have started out as a hobby and it has always been fun to me, but I take great pride in addressing it at one of my passions.
